loved Charlotte as a teacher. Charlotte wrote stories and published books that are available to read and purchase online.

Charlotte was actively engaged in her communities. She started language immersion programs to help revitalize Native American languages and share cultural dances to bring awareness to Native American issues. She introduced Science and Technology to rural Native American communities through grants with Apple and Microsoft. She also obtained a master's degree in business administration through Grand Canyon University.

She loved time with her friends and family, especially the grandkids and would call them up regularly to check in on them and ask them how they were doing. She loved making people laugh with corny jokes or writing jokes for them. She would enjoy listening to her oldies music. Helped her remember the good times.

She was an influence in the community in Education and would show the kids the newest in tech and science and technology she wrote grants to buy the kids computers. She started some programs for Native American Languages and taught them at summer camps with my father making dream catchers and dancing and performing for schools.
