10 days and it feels like forever. Let me tell you about the woman we get to call mom. Yes, I said get because that is our Momma in life and death. One day we will see her and our dad and get caught up on all the time in between us. She was beautiful, smart, funny, strong, sweet, trustworthy, gossip queen, worthy, sensitive, bestie, angel she is our everything. Not too many people could talk to their mom like we get to. Everything in life, everything, and anything. My mom, even though her kids are adults, would do anything and everything for us. We would try our hardest to do anything for her. We got lucky with this woman cause our mom Honestly, is the best in the world!!!

Emily Pieper lit a candle in honor of Kathleen.

For the past 9 years I have had the privilege of being Kathy's neighbor. I miss her very much. It broke my heart to hear that she had passed. She had such a sweet loving spirit and cared deeply for her daughters and grandkids. I could hear it in the way she spoke about each of them. She was always so kind to my own children thinking of them by bringing them clothes and how she spoke to them. I loved talking to her she was so down to earth and she would always lift my spirit and never said goodbye without a hug. I wish I could have given her one more hug. One of my last chats with her she brought over the cat (that had adopted her, it makes sense animals know a good person when they meet one) she had started caring for when it showed up in our neighborhood. My littlest was so excited to see the "Meow Meow" so she brought him over to say hi. Lottie got too excited and squealed in excitement, scaring the cat into the road. Kathy stepped into the road to stop an on coming car to save the cat. She was good to everyone. I send my most heart felt condolences to Angela, Randylin and all of Kathy's grandkids. She loves you each so very much.

When people say a part of me died when they lost someone, I get it, but I didn't. When you left, a part of my soul went with you. I'm no longer whole. I felt my soul leave my body. I know people always say my mom was the best, but my mom truly was. She was an angel here on earth, and hopefully, she got her husband and wings; that's all she ever wanted.

A day with my Mom was the best. She was the glue, one of the strongest people I knew. If you get to spend time with her, count yourself lucky. She would have you dying of laughter. The best hugs and I love you on planet earth. My life now is going to be empty and I mean that with everything in me. Her husband and all of her children meant everything to her.
