Bart is the smartest person I know. He can fix anything. If there is not a current tool to do it! He would create one. I could count on him anytime of the day or night. He was such a great friend to all and never uttered a bad word about anyone. I cannot think of him without having a smile on my face. We had many conversations about our families and how much they were the most important thing in the world. I loved that he loved to host Sunday dinner and cook for his family. If you did not know Bart well you could not really see him as a domestic guy. I loved that when he first found out that he had cancer the MOST important thing to him was to have a family picture of all of his people. That is the true mark of a man! His treasures were his wife, children, and grand children. What a man! He will forever be my beatie! ❤️ He has blessed the lives of every person he ever had the opportunity to know.
