Andrew (Drew) Craig Nichols was born on August 30, 1991 in Redlands, California. Drew grew up in Glendora, Pomona, and Claremont, California. In 2018, he moved to Roy, Utah with his mother, step-father, and sister. He attended Claremont High School for a time, but got his high school diploma from Options for Youth in Claremont. He spent some time studying at Citrus College as well. Drew had various occupations over the years including doing clerical work for Dr Boyer Optometrist, security for the Ontario Convention Center, and a stock worker for Smith's Marketplace. Drew passed away on September 14, 2021 in Roy, Utah.

Drew had a special connection with animals, took great care of his pets, and was often their favorite person to spend time with. His biggest hobby for most of his life was playing video games. He was skilled in most of the games he would play and would often win against opponents across the globe. Drew loved to eat good food, especially sushi and ribs. Drew was very spiritual and had a strong belief in Jesus Christ and his Atonement. He was a quiet person, but every so often would add a funny "one-liner" or witty remark into the conversation. Drew had a strong interest in natural medicine and enjoyed spending his time researching different forms of herbal remedies and supplements. Drew is most often known for his height, occasionally large, wavy, red hair, love for animals, and his skill at playing video games. Drew was surrounded by many people that loved, cared, and supported him his whole life and he will be dearly missed.
