“ I waited to do this. Jan had two faces. One a smiling upbeat person the other scared wondering if the pain would go away. People never saw us at home alone leaning on each other, dancing around the apartment. I never felt complete unless she was by my side. I miss giving her massages. I would marvel at her starting conversation with complete strangers. She was my " hey baby" gonna pick me up Saturday at 2:30??? Mortal life won't be the same again.

“ Jan had a gift with children and always made them feel so special. I loved how she would light up whenever my son was around her, even if she was in pain. One hospital visit was particularly memorable. We brought her Chick-Fil-A and Mountain Dew and some sour candy, and we hung out in her room for a while. Somehow during that visit, she snuggled with my son, Asher, and convinced him that his name was Asher David Cheeky Monkey Bush. He is still convinced that is his name! I love that memory and will try to be good with children like Jan was.

“ Jan called me every year around my birthday... to remind me to get my mammogram. It was her goal to save loved ones from breast cancer. We always had deep discussions and lots of laughter. I'm grateful for her care and concern.

“ My favorite memory of Jan was when I would get to go and watch her do gymnastics. I looked forward to that each time and I always thought she would for sure go to the olympics. She was always happy and I remember her dimples because she was always smiling. I'm so thankful I was able to know her.
