Sean Blake Brockman

August 24, 1972 – February 10, 2021

Sean was the definition of the crazy, adrenaline junky we hear about. He never really accepted the status quo. He loved the great outdoors and that is where his story begins of countless ATV/Motorcycle accidents. Each one taking a toll on his body and mind. Somehow, miraculously he forged ahead. He was tough as nails, and his thick build, no doubt kept him alive for all these years. He adapted to some of life's biggest challenges, and he never failed to leave an impression on those he rubbed shoulders with because of his unique style and numerous stories.

Life was not easy for him, but we are proud of him for what he was able to accomplish. The silver lining in his life were his connections to his mom Carroll who stood by him through it all, and his son Devon who was at the mercy of his "no fear" approach to life. If you were with him at any capacity the term "buckle up" really meant something!

In death we celebrate his life and cherish all of the memories Sean left us with. He was extremely loyal to those he loved and very sentimental. Of all things he holds most dear in this life; a box full of old photos of family and friends filled to the brim and then some.

We thank the many friends who took an interest and concern in his life! Your help and influence is greatly appreciated by Sean!

Until we meet again brother!
