“ He was the coolest uncle ever. I've been through very similar things he has in his life. He understood my pain more than anyone else. He gave the best advice that I will always cherish. He was always just so happy, patient and had a very great sense of humor. I remember as a kid my dad and Travis were doing something with the deer my dad got hunting, and Travis was telling me he wished they had a vending machine where you could choose your own deer meat. That was so funny to me as a kid. He didn't have much, but he always wanted to give. He just wanted to see other people happy. For that reason I feel like he was probably very fulfilled inside, as it makes you feel good yourself to lift up others. He never let his health conditions control him or his happiness. Such an easy going man. He was always reminding people of his love for them. I always felt valid and important when I was around Travis. I don't know any person who is more wholesome than he was. I admired him for his dreams and ambitions. Even with his health stuff going on he always had dreams and goals that he wanted to achieve. Me and him have very similar personalities and I feel like he saved me from making a lot of mistakes by sharing his own mistakes. Even if I did make mistakes he never judged me. He never judged anyone. He just wanted to love and be loved. He helped me out tremendously in some of the darkest times of my life. The cat that hangs around here at the house that was attached to Travis seems kind of lost without him. He really had a way with animals. Nobody could really get through to that cat that we've named Mr. G lol but it always wanted to be around Travis. Travis radiated such warm, positive energy that it was contagious. He may be gone from the physical world, he will never be gone from our thoughts and memories. Till we meet again Trav, I love you.

“ I will always remember all the fun we had when we were kids. Travis would get Grandma's nut cracker and make him talk or anything like it would bite us. I remember his fun little songs he would always sing and his impression of Benny Hill. I remember him riding an inner tube down Hobble Creek all the time and wanting to go too.

One time Travis told me that he seen a Skelton at the high school and thought it was someone that had gotten killed. I am sure it was for a biology class. Shawn got on the other line and played Dirty Deeds by ACDC. It really scared me! Lol

Travis was one of my favorite cousins growing up. I am sorry to see him go, but I am glad he is free from suffering and addiction.

“ He gave his love, forgiveness, money, and time to those he felt wanted or needed it more than he. He forgave many, and great grievances against him. He had only love for those who hurt him. He gave confidence and emotional support to those struggling throughout his life.
